Limburg Cycling and Grimpeur left nothing to chance, when selecting the climbs for this route. Winding ascents have put their mark on it. The climb of the Slingerberg, in Geulle, gives you just a taste of what this route has in store for you. After this climb, it's time for some relaxation first. A feast for the eyes and rest for the legs, as the route crosses the Belgian border to visit the unspoilt Maasland region.
After passing the Flemish forests and ponds, you get to the 'moment supreme' of this course. The Zusserdel, also known as Tienderberg or – in popular Belgian speech – 'Slingerbergske', is one of the best kept secrets of the region.
